

Our Philosophy

The Institute is committed to strategic research through its focus on Specialties and Sub-specialties as a tool to help demonstrate the effects of full and complete oral care (including the use of antimicrobials) on the general health of the patient.

The Institute is also committed to consumer education through the application of its research by medical and dental professionals and private industry.

Our People

Represents some of the leading national experts in dental and cardiovascular health care.

Collectively, more than 163 years experience servicing consumers, corporations, and federal and state agencies across a multiplicity of disciplines, including dental, medical, medical specialty, research, operations, marketing/sales, and manufacturing.

Additionally, over 121 years experience providing consumer health education in conjunction with leading research universities, hospitals, private corporations, and government agencies.

Our Defining Values

- Integrity
- Passion
- Creativity
- Strategic Thinking
- Teamwork

Our Solution

The founders view the market opportunity for the Institute as twofold:

- 1) Development of research on the systemic benefits resulting from the effective treatment of the mouth; and
- 2) Educating the consumer as to the benefits of this treatment, whether independently (through its proprietary expert delivery system) or in conjunction with a product partner through a customized marketing program.

Structured for Success

The Institute's research associates will be recruited by discipline and areas of expertise to guarantee informed research program development and management. Partners work with a team of Institute specialists, ensuring that objectives are met and that individualized attention is provided.
